SEMICONDUCTOR MEMORY DEVICE

Abstract

A memory device comprises a magneto-resistive random access memory (MRAM), a cache comprising a volatile memory, and a decoder configured to translate referenced addresses to physical addresses to access data and pass the data between the MRAM and the cache and between the cache and a controller.